Featuring ED MORRISON, Economic Policy Advisor, Purdue University Center for Regional Development, active in economic and workforce development for over twenty years. For the past several years, Ed has been developing new approaches to accelerate open innovation in economic and workforce development. This work includes the development of new approaches to strategy in open networks, a discipline called strategic doing. He is currently guiding strategy for a network of 12 colleges and universities in Louisiana, the Consortium for Education Research and Technology (CERT).

The Wisconsin Rural Summit will be held December 2, 2011 at Stoney Creek Inn near Wausau, WI. Mark your calendars now to participate in this solution—focused event! Results from three regional forums held in October and demographic data will be used as a backdrop to a fast paced day making plans to grow Wisconsin's rural future. Sustainability and leadership will be emphasized as Wisconsin's rural growth is dependent on leaders like you.

Plus, learn about the Top Rural Development Initiatives as we honor those who are doing excellent work in Rural Wisconsin!
